

GLOBAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP SUMMIT

Entrepreneurs scout for investors

Hyderabad, 30 November

Aditi Balbir, founder of resort management company V Resorts, was keen to meet Kalaari Capital managing director Vani Kola at the Global Entrepreneurship Summit here. Balbir, whose company has so far raised $7 million, sat through the Wednesday session where Kola was a panelist.

"The investors came and left. There was no way to talk to them. Some of them got busy with media interactions after their sessions. The Summit did not have a format where start-ups could connect with the investors," said Balbir, who manages 100 resorts.

Apart from Kalaari, some of the prominent investors whose representatives attended the event were Carlyle, TVS Capital, Helion Advisors and Bloom Ventures.

Investors from countries outside India were also participating. The GES is said to have brought together 1,500 entrepreneurs to Hyderabad, the first venue for this event in South Asia. The 2016 edition of GES took place in June last year at Stanford University in Silicon Valley, California.

Some said they were luckier than Balbir. Revathi Krishna, executive director of media technology company Suyati, said she was also able to discuss her pitch with a couple of investors.

"I attended the event on the suggestion of one of my friends, as I was looking for funding. I had no other expectations but the summit has been a very valuable experience," said Krishna.

Business Standard spoke to some who had also attended the 2016 GES. Rahama Wright, founder and chief executive officer (CEO), Shea Yeleen, a Washington-based producer of butter products, was one.

She said she was happy at the element of Indian culture and tradition at the Hyderabad event.

Adding that the Summit could create more opportunities to intentionally put entrepreneurs and investors together.

"It has been harder to know who is an investor here. There should have been a match-making session or a speed networking session. The last one had a lot more investors."

Start-ups do look for investors at such gatherings and this is a time when the funding environment is not so bright.

"Last year's GES was a very good mix of entrepreneurs, government and investors. Here, it is a little

Telangana to begin start-up incubator

Taking inspiration from the Global Entrepreneurs Summit's focus on women entrepreneurs, the Telangana government has announced that it would set up an exclusive incubation centre for start-ups set up by women entrepreneurs. KT Rama Rao, the state's industries and IT minister, said the government would also set up a ₹15-crore fund to meet the investment needs of these start-ups, while one-fourth of the mandated procurement from small and medium enterprises will be allotted for women-led enterprises.

off-balance. There are definitely less investors and a lot of government presence. Stanford was very spread out. One of the lawns had start-ups making their pitches. It was easy to meet people and have access. People were more forthcoming," said Nupur Mehta, CEO of California-based RigPleish, a start-up making software for ambulances to reduce paperwork.

Jonathan Orthmans, founder and president of Global Entrepreneurship Network, a Washington-based platform to help new firms start and scale up, said Silicon Valley had a lot more of the investor community. "We had a lot of investors and entrepreneurs dating and I would have liked to see more of that here. Maybe investors could have been invited as mentors to startups."

"There was a pitching setup but it was not very well set-up. So, that part was left informal. This event was more about sending a message of collaboration and entrepreneurship to the world," said Upasana Taku, co-founder at mobile wallet company MobiKwik.

Some do not see the GES as a platform to match investors with entrepreneurs. "The government and people here did an amazing job to put up a warm welcome. This might not be a platform to connect investors with entrepreneurs. The best thing entrepreneurs could get from investors here is how to better approach an investor," said Folabi Esan, partner with Adlevo Capital, a Lagos-based investor.

Niti Aayog CEO Amitabh Kant said the summit had been a major success, particularly in allowing networking between Indian and foreign entrepreneurs and investors. At least 40,000 contacts had been established and 11,000 meeting requests were shared on the GOQii app that was made available for the delegates, he said.

Economy rebounds

While investment grew 4.6 per cent in Q2 compared to 1.6 per cent in the first quarter on a year-on-year basis, its share in GDP fell to 27.5 per cent from 29.9 per cent in Q1, indicating that GST-related stress in the economy had not dissipated.

The GST was introduced on July 1 across the country. While manufacturing grew 7 per cent in the second quarter against 1.2 per cent in the first, services sector growth showed a significant decline to 7.1 per cent from 8.7 in the previous quarter on account of the muted performance of the financial, insurance and real estate sectors.

None of the segments grew in double digits though trade, hotel, transport, etc services rose 9.9 per cent, albeit lower than 11.1 per cent in the previous quarter.

Manufacturing bounced back despite a high base effect of 7.7 per cent in Q2 of the previous year.

"It doesn't appear that inventory accumulation has led to GDP increase in Q2. But it will remain in Q3 as firms increase production in anticipation of more sales during the festive season," chief statistician T C A Anant told journalists. Agricultural growth fell to 1.7 per cent in Q2 from 2.3 per cent in the previous quarter because of a sharp decline in the production of foodgrains during the kharif season.

Ready to pay price for reforms: PM

Modi also asked the media to follow the advice of former president APJ Abdul Kalam and not be the purveyors of negative news. Kalam, Modi said, had once observed that the Indian media was ashamed of the country's capabilities and accomplishments. In his 'Mann ki Baat' broadcast on Sunday, Modi had asked people to welcome the New Year by posting five positive stories of 2017.

The PM criticised the corruption prevalent in the Congress-led UPA government. He listed the achievements of his government, particularly regarding the welfare of the poor. He said his government ensured accident insurance at ₹1 a month and life insurance at 90 paise a month for the poor.

The PM said 15 crore people had taken such insurance, and as much as ₹1,800 crore had been disbursed in claim money. "Any other government would have been exalted for being a messiah of the poor. Newspaper headlines and round the clock television discussions would have taken place...But I don't think people have noticed. But I have done this out of conviction, whether someone notices or not," he said.
